Customer Reviews

My son loves this book. I read it to him every day from the time he was five weeks. He especially loves the last page, the sleeping baby. This and Noisy Farm remain favorites. At nineteen months he still asks to have it read over and over. Now he makes the sounds as we lift the flaps. I have had to replace both of these books twice, as they were read so often. I think the book is OK, i received a damaged version so almost all flaps are missing but if it was in a good condition, I think it is a very nice book. Babies will definitely be interested in such type of reading. :)

My 9.5 month old LOVES this book. She laughs when we get to the page with the happy baby, and she points and makes noises at all the other babies. She loves this book so much, in fact, that if we're reading a different one and she sees it in the pile, she'll close the current book and crawl over to retrieve this one.

Of all the books I've read my grandkids, this has been one of the most popular. The 3-year old even still chooses it. The emotions are ones young children can identify with--sad, happy, hungry, want mommy, sleepy. The book has actual photos in it, not artwork. I've given it as a gift several times. It's great because the children can practice small motor control lifting the flaps.

We have all of the DK lift the flap books in this series. This is the only one I don't like. The images appear blurry and of poor quality. Buy Noisy Farm from this same series - my babies loved that one.

My 13 month old loves this book and has for many months now. It's definitely her favorite, she says "more, more" each time we finish it. She loves seeing the babies in the book. She smiles or laughs each time a flap is lifted. And she says some of the sounds that go along with it too. My older daughter liked it a lot when she was younger too. So simple yet so effective!

My daughter (and I!) absolutely love this book! So much, that it has had to be replaced a couple of times. She gets so excited to pull back the flaps and shout out what she is expecting to see. We started reading it at about 6 months - and now at 11 months, she knows it cover to cover!

Both of my sons' favorite baby books. We have bought for a few new moms. Flaps are fun to read to children and they LOVE looking at the baby faces. Small enough that little ones can handle on their own.
